

Presentation Guidelines For INMED International Medicine Certificate Students

Education is an essential part of improving health, regardless of the nation or setting. This component of the INMED International Medicine Certificate will give you an opportunity to hone your teaching skills, as well as to contribute to the expertise of those serving at your training site.

Soon after arrival at your training site, speak with your supervisor about an opportunity to make a presentation to the staff. With the assistance of your supervisor, select a topic on health promotion or disease management relevant to the particular needs or interests of the staff.

A presentation of 20-30 minutes is usually sufficient. Allow ample opportunity for questions and comments. Some useful presentation topics may include:

- Malaria prevention
- Treatment of diarrheal diseases
- Diagnosis and treatment of common skin disorders
- Home methods of water purification
- Childhood vaccinations
- Prevention of protein deficiency among children
- Management of postpartum hemorrhage
- Evaluation of febrile illnesses
- Management of seizures
- Tuberculosis prevention
