Institute for International Medicine (INMED)

The Institute for International Medicine, better known as INMED, is a not-for-profit educational and charitable organization that offers educational programs that provide focused skills, knowledge, and experience to serve the forgotten, many of whom are the underserved populations living in or from a developing country .

Our mission is to Equip healthcare professionals to serve the forgotten and we accomplish this through the following programs:

- Professional tracks. INMED's educational tracks are focused on preparing the healthcare student and/or professional with the knowledge and skills to successfully serve the forgotten as a career. INMED's professional tracks consist of Certificates in International Medicine; HIV Leadership; International Public Health; and International Pharmacy. INMED also offers Diplomas in International Medicine; International Public Health; and International Pharmacy.

- Educational courses. INMED's educational courses include online; self-pace; and live educational courses/conferences on topics relating to International Medicine; Diseases of Poverty; Cross-Cultural Skills; Health Leadership; and Disaster Medicine Management. INMED hosts the annual Exploring Medical Missions Conference in May; International Medicine/Public Health Intensive in June; and a Symposium every fall.

- Educational resources. INMED produces and offers resources, including books and presentations, related to international medicine; cross-cultural skills; ethics; disaster medicine; health leadership; diseases of poverty; community development; public health; medical missions as a career; and other related topics.

Results to Date: INMED has partnered with faculty at more than 50 medical care facilities in 20 nations. More than 200 health care professionals and students have completed one of INMED's Professional tracks, including 111 during the 2009-2010 academic year. In 2009-2010 academic year over 900 individuals participated in one of INMED's educational courses.

Online Course on Cross-Cultural Skills Coming Soon!

INMED is launching a brand new self-pace course that emphasizes a practical, applicable approach to Cross-Cultural Skills.
